INFORMATION

If your sequencer, computer, or MIDIfile player reads MIDI File 1 or 0 but your sound modules are not set up to GM/GS Standard, the following will be of special interest. Below are the Voice / Sound Data location names and numbers for Instruments and Drums. This should enable you to create a Form of GM Standard Setup. BandTrax MIDI Files also contain controllers, SysEx and effects commands often not available in many devices outside of the current GS/GM range of products. If you are unsure of how this will operate on your equipment, call and we will assist with any questions you may have.

INFORMATION

General MIDI (GM) is an industry wide set of specifications for sound sources that allow music data to be created regardless of manufacturer or specific models. General MIDI defines the minimum number of voices that should be supported, the MIDI messages that should be recognized, which sounds correspond to which program change numbers, and the layout of rhythm sounds. There is also ROLAND's GS Format. The Roland GS Format is an extended GM specification which defines the manner in which multitimbral sound sources respond to MIDI messages. The GS Format includes specifications of sounds, functions for tone editing, effects (chorus and reverb/ delay), and additional standardised parameters. GS devices usually have more sounds, refinement capabilities of sounds and a wider range of drum sets available. This indifference from GM does not create too many problems. For example, if a Piano sound used in a MIDI file is specific to a GS device, a GM device will default to the nearest similar sound. Because of the "extras" available within GS, BandTrax program all MIDI files to this standard to achieve a greater quality of excellence in arrangement and production, then "Re-Mix" to GM. If you are using non-GS/GM devices we recommend structuring a GM Patch set or updating your equipment. Some products may not accept all controller commands, resulting in irregular settings of controllers. Individual products also interpret effects levels and tonal dynamics differently, resulting in too much or too little reverb as well as indifferent blending of tones. These differences can not be accounted for while the MIDI file is being programmed and therefore may have to be adjusted by the end user. BandTrax MIDI Files are band tracks, no melodies to distract from or hide the complexities of the instrument data (unless specified). BandTrax MIDI Files are provided via email as a zip attachment, or supplied by post on 3.5" diskettes. Some of the equipment used for the production and checking of all BandTrax MIDI Files are: Roland A-30 Controller Keyboard, Roland GI-10 Guitar MIDI Interface, Roland SC-88 Sound Canvas, with softwares, Musicator GS for Windows V2.02, 2.12 & Audio, Cakewalk Versions 2.01 & Pro Audio 9.0 for Windows, and Roland SMF Development software on Pentium computers fitted with Roland USB MIDI interfaces operating under Windows XP Media Center.
BandTrax® Australia hope you enjoy using our MIDI Files as much as we enjoyed programming them.
